

Accessibility Plan for Evolution

This document outlines the accessibility guidelines used to improve accessibility for Evolution. The guidelines adhere to the WCAG 2.2 document which is being used by countries across the globe to define web accessibility guidelines.

WCAG 2.2 Defines 3 levels of compliance, level A being the lowest level and level AAA being the highest level. Although level AAA is desirable, WCAG 2.2 does not suggest that all items on a Web page follow these standards, as sometimes this may not be possible (see this link).

The compliance follows the conformance guidelines as defined by WCAG 2.2 where all Evolution web pages follow the WCAG 2.2 guidelines to be conformant. Please keep in mind that conformance claims are not required (see this link), however we will attempt to give an overview of what success criterion will be conformant within Evolution.

Evolution is conformant with level AA. The software is partially conformant with level AAA. More work will be needed in the future to be conformant with level AAA, but some success criteria belonging to level AAA will never be addressed as they are not necessary for the application's use.

For the time being (due to time constraints), we have skipped any point having to do with text dimension ratios and responsive design. Responsive design is not required for Evolution as the software falls under the "games" category, and scrolling along the x and y axis is enough (see documentation on reflow), however we are working towards making the application responsive. Additionally, we have skipped anything that has to do with providing in-depth descriptions for videos on the screen (this may be addressed in the future using text documents). Our focus will be on keyboard navigation, taking care of web page structure and semantics, and making every web page accessible to screen readers.

Please find the new additions to WCAG 2.2 here. The new items have been highlighted in bold in the success criteria table below.

Below are all accessibility features according to WCAG 2.2. The left column represents the success criterion, that is the feature to be compliant with. Each feature has a level associated with it. The last 3 columns represent information about whether the success criterion for the summer 2023 release was achieved, whether the feature will be addressed in the future (except when this does not apply to Evolution), and some notes about it.
